

Followup on the John Holliman Story

A. Heald

Preface

It is now the early part of the year 2008. Time is growing short until another presidential election and elections for other political offices as well. As the person who wrote and put out the original untold story of John Holliman back in the month of September of the year 2000 I had thought that the information provided would obviate the need for this followup story.

Although it provided factual information that had an impact on the United States presidential election of the year 2000, the story was virtually blacked out by all of the media. This was not because the media did not know about the story. This will be discussed further in following chapters of this electronic book.

The Internet, as we have come to know it, will not be here much longer. It will be around for about two more years, or less. This is because the government has the goal of taking "complete control of cyberspace." Radio, television, and most print media are under the thumb of government or corporate interests. In most cases these media outlets cannot be trusted. Already some radio personalities are attacking the Internet, totally without justification. It is therefore urged that the reader carefully go through the material in this e-book while it is still possible. An open Internet and its freedom will not last. The people who consider themselves "elites" cannot carry out their program for domination and control with the truth out in the open. The subjugation of the "masses" is well under way now.

To watch the party of conservative Republicans, especially the House of Representatives, be voted into the minority in both the House and Senate in 2006 in Washington, D.C. was a truly disgusting development to behold. Especially after they undertook the dangerous task of going up against the incredibly ruthless and corrupt infrastructure that was being set up by unscrupulous elements within the Democrat party at the time.

Large numbers of Americans read the untold story about John Holliman, via a single site on the Internet, starting in the year 2001. Much of the conventional conservative media not only failed to cover this story but actively made, and continue to make, attempts to spike the story. It is this serious and potentially deadly negligence on the part of the media which this story is designed to circumvent, with the help of the people who choose to act to preserve what is left of America.

How many people read this story depends partly on you the reader. What has been referred to as "political incorrectness" does in fact exist and this story falls into that category. It will be classified as politically incorrect, not because it is not correct but because it serves to expose facts which many people will not like, particularly those who seek or are in political power. I trust that, after reading it, you will understand why the decision was made to write it.

Chapter One

Introduction

Each chapter of this book will have references within the text to files and external Internet sites in its own bibliography section. Each chapter's bibliography will be accessible by clicking on its link at the end of each chapter. You may wish to have a printer on line to print out what you wish to save or see. Or you can select "save as" from the file menu to save a webpage to a folder on your PC, just save as "webpage complete". Saving or printing is recommended in case the articles on external sites are removed. References to items in the bibliography will be identified by a superscript number in parenthesis or brackets as follows:

example<sup>(0)</sup>[0]. Clicking on this number will not go to the reference. Jot down any number you wish to use and then go to the bibliography and click on the link next to the corresponding number. If you see two of the same numbers in the bibliography they are just two different ways to the same article. Speakers or headphones should be available to you as some multimedia files may be in the references; and a connection to the Internet is highly desirable to see all the material. Try to view these items as soon as possible, they may be gone without notice on someone's whim.

The original untold story of John Holliman can be viewed by clicking on its link in the Chapter One bibliography; this is the story which came out in the year 2000. It is recommended that this story be read if you have not done so already.

The decision to write this followup story was not planned and is undertaken with some ambivalence. I know that there are many Americans who deserve to know the truth, and then can decide to act on it in their own way. After the 2000 story came out and was all over the Internet, this author was not contacted by even one single person from anywhere in the United States or in the entire world for that matter. Nobody seems to care, they may be too busy with entertainment, or listening to the corrupt media's deceptions and omissions, or reading the Bible or going to church. Some don't know of the story or have to take care of their own personal matters. After seven years no contact with this author by anyone for any reason. Nice, eh? More on this later.

My personal destruction was actively sought by some of those exposed in the story however, including attempts at my financial ruin. A small monetary charge is being attached to this book, it may or may not keep me going, if this author is not killed or otherwise destroyed in a more subtle manner; in additional attempts. The price will be about the same as you would pay for a T-shirt alone, from some of the radio talk show hosts websites. Most of these talk radio hosts, many of them who have incomes of millions of dollars every year, have been taking their listeners for a walk down the garden path. And doing this on purpose, either by their silence or deceptions.

The reader should understand that the United States is going downhill at the hands of thugs and tyrants of the so-called New World Order and internal organized crime elements. United States congressmen and senators have been compromised and are under at least an implied threat, the courts also. Don't count on the president of the United States either, we have all seen what can go wrong with this office. Only an alert and knowledgeable citizenry can stop this continued decline at this point. It would not be wise to discuss specifics as to what citizens can do to effect this halt to our oblivion. Registering to vote and voting are a start, if you do not do this already. But voting may not be enough.

One thing is sure however. These criminal elements can only destroy the United States by recruiting and paying people to do their dirty work for them. So let all your friends and relatives be made aware that they should strongly resist or not comply with directives which violate any oath they take; nor should they carry out acts which violate the constitutional rights of citizens of our country. Really bad people can get into government, as we know. Don't let these bad apples ruin the country, do not obey immoral orders or instructions, make noises about your discontent. Don't be brainwashed by lies and propaganda, which today are thick and heavy. There will be a price to pay for doing the right thing, decent people will pay it.

"If ever this free people, if this government itself is ever utterly demoralized, it will come from this incessant human wriggle and struggle for office, which is but a way to live without work."--Abraham Lincoln.

Appropriate words from Mr. Lincoln in this 2008 election year. Americans have a righteous reason to be demoralized over who might gain political office. Corrupt people can ascend to high office with relative ease; and can do much damage in a short period of time. We should have a system of stability and peace; instead we see that we have some people who think that when they get into high political offices they have a license to do what they please and damn the oath of office they took and damn the United States Constitution as well. In fact some are so brazen that they seek and succeed in passing legislation which opposes the oath of office they swore to uphold. But who is going to stop these offenses if not the people? Do not rely on the "system" to do anything but pass laws to protect itself. Citizens are secondary and can be damned, in the view of these elitist elements. They just use ordinary Americans as hired guns. They must be resisted by the same means that they seek to apply to oppress the people.

Will America become a police state? We are well on the way<sup>(1)</sup>. The situation can be kept from sliding down the slope further, but only if you make an effort to do so, in your own way. And if we have enough good people acting at the same time, even without communications between them. The alternative is bleak indeed<sup>(2)(3)</sup>. Over one-hundred forty million people were murdered by their own, or other, governments in the twentieth century. Most could not fight back. Or chose not to fight back. They were too trusting. Or too easily intimidated. That cost them their lives.

Before the reader comes to any decisions on the contents of this followup story, please take the time to read all the chapters. To go to the next chapter or another chapter in this e-book just click on the table of contents link at the end of each chapter. Then select the chapter desired from there.

It should also be understood that writing your representative in the Congress, House or Senate, on this matter will do little good, they have been compromised and are under threat themselves. And trying to call your talk-radio hosts will similarly be of little use. Talk radio hosts will be discussed further in the chapter on the media. It is also recommended that the reader who has not read the original John Holliman Story do so before proceeding, it can be found in the Chapter One Bibliography.

The Race Is On

Recent developments leave the author little choice in writing this followup story. This writer has been forced to live a cloistered life for some years now, under the threat of death; and having suffered the events which were related to readers in the original story referred to above. And the following items should leave the intelligent reader with incontrovertible evidence of what is really happening with respect to the matters which are discussed. You will not find this information elsewhere, the author has been in a vantage-point as no others have. It is disturbing, which is why it will not be in the conventional print and electronic media, liberal or conservative. The reader will probably ask: How could this happen? The answer is very easily, and there are worse things to come. Only you, the people, can solve the problem. Government cannot and will not act because it is part of the problem. Don't think that the Executive, Judicial, or Legislative branches of government can solve the problem alone. In his farewell speech to the nation President Eisenhower stated that only an alert and knowledgeable citizenry could keep things in line. Not the government, but you and I.

The author's arch-nemesis is back, namely, criminal elements within the Democrat Party. It now appears that Barack Obama has decided to associate with Al Gore and the Clintons and also that Al Gore and the Clintons have chosen to back and get Barack Obama elected to the Presidency of the United States. If this happens this will be the bane of the author and many others who have opposed them, and of the U.S. itself. The House managers who conducted impeachment proceedings will be in jeopardy again if these evil forces regain power. These evil forces speak of "change"; change means the disintegration of our government. The oath of office means nothing to them; they will take the oath to preserve and protect and a few minutes later talk of changing things.

The author's phone has been tapped for years. There are methods to determine this, they involve keypad entries and listening to the response. These were/are "official" taps, of not only the author, but his acquaintances as well. The author has been frequently followed at all hours by a number of people. You want a license number? Michigan #6AP-G07 approached the author at about 5a.m. one morning while he was walking his dog. The manner was such that the driver wanted it known that the author was being surveilled. A sharp increase in the number of vehicles was noticed just prior to the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack. They were spotted jockeying for positions the author would walk past; it was dark and they had their lights out. They were avoided by the author. It got so bad that a letter was written to Devvy Kidd in early September of 2001 and told her about it and warned her to watch out for herself and her family as well. She had posted the John Holliman Story on her website in March of 2001; and she had subsequently received serious death threats and her daughter was involved in a number of serious automobile accidents.

Efforts were made to hack into the author's computer via a high speed DSL line and associated wireless gateway. In late August of 2007 the author called AT&T service to complain of very serious and frequent disruptions of DSL service. After being connected to another service person who went by the name of "Lucky", Lucky's first question was: What is the serial number on the bottom of your DSL wireless modem? This was the tip-off. The serial number is only required to gain access to the author's PC via the wireless gateway, it is not needed to fix service problems from the central office to the user's PC. Never before had this been asked and the author was indeed told by others that the serial number is not required to be disclosed for service purposes. Lucky was told that the author's phone was tapped and that the serial number was private and would not be given to anyone. He then insisted that the problem was being caused by interference of some sort and an onsite call by a technician was needed to fix the problem. Lucky was then told that the problem was at the central office and that there was no way that a technician needed to pay a visit and would not be allowed to enter in any case. I told Lucky that another way would be found to deal with the problem and I hung up. Within a few hours the problem disappeared, and has not returned. This was an obvious ruse to gain access.

Add to this the many times, late in the evening, when semi-automatic weapons fire was heard at the author's home. Numerous shots were heard at any one time, these were within pistol range of the author's house and some flashes were seen to be coming from vehicles driving on the street. Does the reader require more information? No problem, read on.

Death Threats Over Youtube

As most readers know, Youtube is the popular video sharing network, which is currently in the ownership of Google. The author has an account on Youtube and has had it since late 2007. An e-mail address is required to be given to obtain an account; and e-mails to subscribers are received from Youtube and they name the subscriber's account "channel" name. It was suspected for some time that the author's e-mail was being not only monitored but compromised as well. Some e-mails to well known domain names such as worldnetdaily.com and coasttocoastam.com, concerning Usama bin Laden, were returned to the author, they had been returned to the author undelivered and they were marked "domain prohibited".

Barack Obama was in the author's city, Detroit, MI, on June 16, 2008. Also with Obama were Al Gore and the Michigan governor and the mayor of Detroit, Kwame Kilpatrick. Barack Obama was then endorsed by Al Gore for the United States presidency. Obama left the Detroit area after a trip to a Detroit suburb the following day, June 17, 2008. On June 18, 2008 a person subscribed to the author's Youtube channel. As a matter of routine the author viewed the subscriber's channel page. Directly below is an exact image of what was seen on the new subscriber's channel:

In the above image the "1stMF" is the channel name. The "MF" is probably an acronym for a common profanity term. The channel icon picture below it is a picture of then Detroit Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick. To his left is a domain name, KWAMEMUGSHOT.COM. The name "PurpleGang" is the name given by the channel's creator. The join date is given as January 28, 2007 but the 1stMF creator could have hacked the channel info, the 2 channel views came from the author of this story himself. Of importance here is the one subscription of the 1stMF channel, under Subscriptions; it is the author's Youtube channel and was done on June 18, 2008, one day after Barack Obama left the Detroit area, and two days after he and Al Gore were in Detroit. The author's city happens to be Kwame Kilpatrick's city as well.

The Purple Gang was an organized-crime group which worked out of the City of Detroit, MI in the 20th Century. See the quote following:

"Due to their murderous reputation, Al Capone supposedly borrowed Purple Gang members George Lewis and brothers Phil and Harry Keywell for the 1929 St. Valentine's Day Massacre. Throughout history, the Purple Gang became one of the most ruthless gangs to ever roam the earth, having killed hundreds of people, close to five-hundred (500)."

The Purple Gang is the first death threat to the author on the 1stMF channel. Next note the image of then Mayor Kilpatrick in the channel image directly above. It shows him with his left arm extended and his hand giving a "thumbs up". In the context of the Purple Gang this thumbs up does not mean the conventional "OK". See the following paragraph and its definition of the significance of the thumbs up sign.

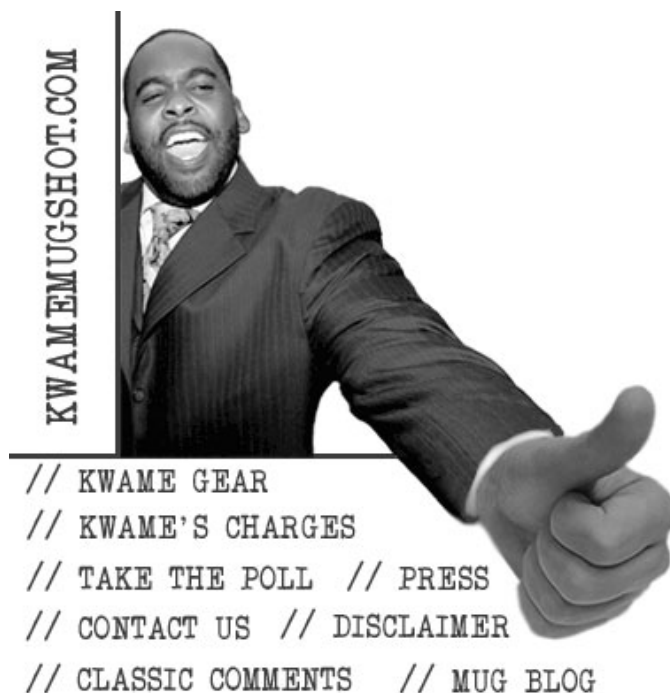

"Actually, death to a gladiator was shown as a thumbs up where as to keep the gladiator alive the people showed their fist with their thumb tucked under their hand--hidden. The whole thumbs business originates from the idea of symbolizing the thumb as the Gladius Sword. This is the sword of the Gladiators and also where the word Gladiator comes from. Thumb up high like the sword is shown for it to strike upon the opponent whereas having the thumb tucked into the fist means having the Sword tucked behind the shield of the person or put away in its holster showing no threat to the opponent."

And so the thumbs up is clearly another death threat to the author. It means death to the author because of the context of the Purple Gang, the target was the author's Youtube channel page. And the timing was of importance, this happened two days after Al Gore and Barack Obama were in the City of Detroit, a direct indication that the threat came from operatives associated with the Democrat-party. Combine this with the fact that the only way someone would know of the author's Youtube account would be by the monitoring of his e-mail account by Google or Yahoo mail and AT&T. This suggests high level involvement, possibly by dark government forces. With the author dead things would be much simpler and easier for the Democrats. Yes readers, it looks like they abort not only babies but adults too; and with the help of "conservative" media reticence.

With respect to the above image of Kilpatrick it should be noted that this is a modification of another picture of him. See the picture directly below:

In the picture above Kwame Kilpatrick actually has his right arm extended and is clenching someone's hand. Someone took the above picture and removed the background with a computer image program, they then flipped the image horizontally to make right-side look like left-side. Then they put in a different hand, with the thumbs up being highly prominent. The resulting modified picture appears directly below, as seen on the kwamemugshot.com website:

Someone took the picture directly above and removed the horizontal text and placed the picture on the 1stMF Youtube channel and then subscribed to the author's Youtube channel on June 18, 2008. The domain of kwamemugshot.com was created on the following date seen on the next image:

It was created on March 24, 2008. The author noted a store advertisement on this domain's webpage. The store was located in Royal Oak, MI. This is a few miles north of Detroit. The store number listed was 1-866-756-6538.

Here is a quote from Barack Obama on the night of June 16, 2008, while in Detroit: "I'm grateful Al Gore came to Detroit tonight," Obama said. "But I'm ever more grateful for everything he's done in the last 40 years for this country." It is interesting to note that Obama's favorite movie is The Godfather.

What is to be discussed next has greatly disturbed the author and should disturb the reader as well. It may be fortuitous that it became evident when it did; otherwise you may not have seen this story due to the author's premature demise.

The Big Hack Job

The above images of Kwame Kilpatrick were being examined by the author in an image program to see what changes had been made to the original photo. No web browser was running and the computer being used was connected to a high-speed DSL line and a wireless router. After working on the images for awhile the computer was left idle for between five and ten minutes; nothing was touched during this idle time. Then suddenly an audible sound, and a pop-up window appeared over the picture on the author's computer screen. An image of this was taken by the author and no action, either yes or no was taken. See image below:

The image directly above shows part of the image being worked on by the author, along with the pop-up window over it. Users of Windows based programs which handle images can read the text inside the pop-up and see several irregularities immediately. Firstly the word "really" is superfluous, and secondly you do not convert something to the clipboard; you copy it to the clipboard. Thirdly the words "large private scrap" are something the program would not know; the program does not know the image is "private" or that it is "scrap". Lastly the author took no action to do anything that would bring such a question up.

Someone obviously was watching screenshots of the author's PC in realtime at a remote location. And they obviously were concerned about the images that they saw and decided to send a message to the author saying that the image was private and should be turned to scrap. This was an admonition to the author. And worded to leave no doubt. Users of these types of image programs will also know that this type of window usually requires action, clicking on yes or no, before the program can be closed or minimized. And it is known that when minimized, a program takes all associated windows with it to the task bar. To verify the suspicion, no action was taken on the pop-up window, either yes or no, and the image program was then minimized with no problem, leaving the pop-up window alone on the desktop. It was not associated with the program.

So now it was known that not only e-mail was being monitored and web activity as well; but everything the author was doing on his computer was being watched. Screenshots were being sent out in realtime. And the remote location could also effect actions on the monitored PC. Savvy PC users are aware that there are indeed programs that allow remote access from anywhere. The reader might say "well I will just disconnect my Internet line while I work". Nice thought, but in reality screenshots can still be taken and stored in a file. The file can then be automatically uploaded when you reconnect. Newly created files can be marked and later uploaded to a remote monitoring point. There are scripting languages such as Javascript that can open pop-up windows on another PC. These languages can also be programmed to run any computer code on a targeted PC. And when you update your spyware or virus programs do you know what else you may be getting at the same time?

President Bush may tell us that only terror suspects are being monitored but he is in no position to make such a statement. He simply cannot know all that is going on out in the field and by what agencies or for what purpose. That is the script he is given to read. Communications to other countries are monitored for terror related information? By this definition, all Youtube accounts and messages are automatically monitored and scanned.

Some very naive columnists haven't written that they have nothing to hide so they don't care if their phones and computers are monitored. Someone else staying alive may depend on their not having their movements or activities known in advance. One high profile example is Rep. Sonny Bono whose phones were likely tapped and which may have resulted in his death. <sup>(4)</sup>
